11605 台北市文山區指南路二段64號 道藩樓四樓 (02)2939-3091#63036 european@nccu.edu.tw The Department of European Languages and Cultures, formerly known as European Studies Program prior to 2012, was established in 2006 within the College of Foreign Languages and Literatures at NCCU. Our department offers sections in three major European languages: French, German, and Spanish. We maintain small class sizes to provide personalized instruction, emphasizing comprehensive language training that includes listening, speaking, reading, writing, and translation skills. Additionally, our curriculum places a strong emphasis on cultural awareness, literary proficiency, and a commitment to the humanities.

Objectives	To cultivate European language professionals and attain an international vision in Taiwan through an education devoted to European languages and cultures. The department aims to develop elites with multi-language proficiency, to strengthen education and academic research of European languages and cultures, and to reinforce the integration of inter-departmental resources in the school.
	2 To cultivate potential European language teachers for secondary schools: to diversify the language proficiency of students in Taiwan and to develop their international vision.
	To provide multi-disciplinary training in the European languages for talented individuals: to integrate language learning with the cultivation of literature and cultural studies, in combination with international affairs, regional studies and media education so as to develop well-rounded Taiwan professionals in the field of European affairs.
Targets	 To promote European language teaching, expand the international vision of students and increase their competitiveness. To meet the demand for such professionals in the human resources market. To encourage political, cultural and economic interaction with European countries. To cultivate potential European language teachers for positions in secondary schools. To encourage students to develop secondary competencies.
Directions	Fundamental European language training (listening, speaking, reading, writing and translation): limiting class size, in combination with online instruction and instruction by native speakers for oral and listening training.
	Courses in literature and culture: a historical introduction of culture and literature from the Classical period (Greek and Roman) to contemporary Europe, in order to comprehend the historical development of modern Europe.
	Multi-disciplinary and multi-language development: to encourage students to take courses in different disciplines and languages.
